

Annotations

PDF Annotations in the source PDF document that do not have appearance streams will not be exported to the output HTML. An appearance stream defines how an annotation, such as a button or a hyperlink, appear in the PDF document depending on how the user interacts with it. For example, a link in a PDF document might change color after someone reading the document clicks on that link.